

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

THE BULLETIN OF THE ### ATTENDANCE

On February twenty-second the Museum passed the 800,000 mark in attendance since the opening—an average of 809 admissions for every day since the Museum opened on June 7, 1916. That the public maintains its interest is shown by the fact that the attendance on March second, the first spring-like Sunday of the year, was 5,271.

---

MEMBERSHIP

The membership schedule as given below shows, unfortunately, a falling off in the number of Annual Members. This is caused by the necessity of dropping from the lists the names of 275 people who agreed to become members before the Museum opened, or soon thereafter, but who have paid no dues and have ignored letters addressed to them or failed to keep promises of payment. The Membership Department has every intention to allow ample time for payment, but it must know whether or not members are interested and intend to maintain their membership.

The loss of this large group makes it most important that all members “in good standing” should keep up their memberships, and assist us to add new names to replace those lost. There are many delinquents to-day—two hundred members have as yet failed to pay their dues for the year ending in the early months of 1918. This appeal is made especially to them, that the cost of collecting dues may be reduced and the time of the department assistants made available for extending the number of new members.

The present membership is as follows:

Annual Members	1592
Sustaining Members	17
Life Members	448
Fellows	94
Fellows for Life	19
Fellows in Perpetuity	4
Honorary Fellows	18
Benefactors	6
	<hr/> 2198